

Another success for Carver Technologies Old Port of Montréal Corporation acquires the UMANA line

Montreal, Quebec (November 22, 2010) – Carver Technologies today announced the making of a major contract for the acquisition and implementation of its UMANA line of human resources management, time management and payroll packages at the Old Port of Montréal Corporation.

This Corporation has adopted the mission of developing, managing and animating a vast urban recreational tourism and cultural site. This site includes two business units: the Quays of the Old Port of Montréal and the Montréal Science Centre.

The new system will allow replacement of all the time clocks by incorporating a proximity card reader, accepting the access cards currently in use in the organization. The human resources management rules will be integrated for time captured by the time clock, as well as time recorded on the time sheets. Everything will be perfectly integrated into the human resources management and payroll system and operational on the SQL Server platform.

“One of the major objectives is to improve the productivity of human resources management activities by eliminating, wherever possible, the need to go to the employees’ paper files to consult current and historical information,” said Isabelle Morin, Director of Human Resources with the Corporation.
